Re : Strategic Project Manager (Finance) - Remote

Turning financial data into decisions that hold up under scrutiny, while keeping cross-functional teams aligned on budgeting, forecasting and ROI, is where finance transformation projects usually break down. That's the piece of this role I'd want to own from day one.

At CNP Assurances, I rebuilt investment accounting production under Solvency II constraints, covering 350 billion euros in assets under management, delivered in 18 months and on schedule. That meant financial modeling, ERP coordination and reporting that had to hold up against regulatory review, not just internal sign-off. On another mandate, I led the migration and data cleanup for an accounting system switch, building the UAT test scripts and reconciling suspense accounts that had accumulated for years, work that only counts if the numbers tie out exactly at cutover. Across both, the constant was translating complex financial and actuarial data into something senior leadership could act on, under GAAP and IFRS constraints, with stakeholders in finance, actuarial, IT and risk pulling in different directions.

Remote delivery is standard practice for me. My most recent engagement, at Clearwater, ran fully distributed, and I work comfortably across time zones with the collaboration tools that require.

As a contractor who is a non-UK Tax resident, based overseas, IR35 does not apply to me.

Happy to walk through the CNP and Clearwater work in more detail on a call.
