I bring 25 years of deep financial services expertise directly into front-office advisory. What SimCorp needs here is someone who translates complex investment processes—portfolio management, trading systems, compliance frameworks—into actionable client outcomes. That's exactly where I've built my track record.

Over the past decade, I've guided major financial institutions through multi-year transformation programs. Most recently, I led the redesign of a €2B+ asset manager's portfolio and risk reporting infrastructure, working across front-office, middle-office, and technology teams to align on system configuration, process standards, and regulatory requirements. The result: faster client reporting cycles, cleaner data lineage, and measurable adoption of new frameworks. I'm equally comfortable in the technical weeds of instrument valuation and OTC derivative handling as I am translating those mechanics to senior stakeholders under deadline pressure.

What matters for this role: I understand the full spectrum of Dimension workflows because I've lived them—not just theoretically. I can become a trusted advisor to your clients quickly because I speak both their business language and the platform language they need to execute at scale.

One honest note: I've worked as a senior independent consultant for the past several years rather than in a traditional role. I'm actively looking to return to a structure where I can build a team, invest in depth over time, and anchor my expertise in an organization's success. This role, with its consulting services mandate and focus on client partnership, offers exactly that.

Let's talk about how my experience maps to your EMEA priorities. I'm available to discuss what you're building.
