I'm writing to apply for the Business Analyst role in your Regulatory & Fund Reporting team at Deloitte Luxembourg.

I bring 25 years in insurance and finance—entirely in transformation and delivery roles. My core value here: I bridge the gap between business complexity and execution discipline. Your CTU needs someone who can translate between fund reporting teams, IT, and the Digital Factory while driving testing strategy and governance. That's where I work best.

In my last two major mandates, I rebuilt the PMO and financial controls framework for an insurance group post-merger (18-month program, 40+ stakeholders across actuarial, finance, compliance), and led the redesign of quarterly regulatory reporting for an asset manager with €50B AUM—tightening close cycles by 35% while strengthening data governance. Both roles required the same skillset: end-to-end thinking, governance discipline, and the ability to keep complex programs aligned under regulatory pressure.

I should be direct about one thing: I've been self-employed as a senior consultant for the past five years. I thrive in high-stakes delivery environments, but I'm clear-eyed about the difference between mission-based work and permanent team membership. That said, I'm looking to anchor myself in a role that combines deep technical leverage with real organizational impact—and your CTU structure appeals to me precisely because it sits at the intersection of business, technology, and regulatory reality.

I'm ready to move to Luxembourg and commit to the role fully.

Let's talk.
